

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Editor's column: Comics, Culture, and Context vii

ARTICLES

- “Piece it all together and it’s barely a quarter of the puzzle”:
Design, Arthrology, and Transtextuality in Seth’s
It’s a Good Life If You Don’t Weaken 1
Dale Jacobs
- Succeeding in the Super Biz: The Subaltern Superhero
in Jaime Hernandez’s God and Science 25
Oswaldo Oyola
- How Do Comics Tell History? 49
Kultej Dhariwal
- Breaking Boundaries: [Non] – Declarative Identities
in Gilbert Hernandez’s Julio’s Day 77
Marina Vlahaki
- Marvel Team-Up: Hawkeye, Loki and the Inescapable, Innate
Resistance of the Female Superhero Comic Fan 95
Matthew Cicci
- The Punishment of War: Marvel Comics’ The Punisher
and the Evolving Memory of Vietnam 123
Andrew J. Friedenthal
- The Adventures of Wallace and Clark: Superheroic
Correlations in Stevens’ “Notes Toward a Supreme Fiction” . . . 151
Tom Miller
- Learning to “MARCH” – Selma 1965 and its Legacy
A Report on John Lewis discussing his graphic novel series at
The Center for American Studies at Columba University . . . 169
Katie Todd

WORKS IN PROGRESS

Wolves in the City – The Algerian War and Colonialism
in Comics 175
Geo Sipp

REVIEWS

Review of Nick Sousonis The Unflattening
The Medium Is the Mindspace 191
A. David Lewis

Two Views of Wonder Woman: Reviews of Jill LePore’s
The Secret History of Wonder Woman and Noah Berlatsky’s Wonder Woman: Bondage and Feminism
in the Marston/Peter Comics, 1941-1948

The Other Never-Ending Battle:
BDSM and Wonder Woman’s Feminism 201
Anthony Michael D’Agostino

Separating the Feminist Icon and the Comic Book
Character: Marston’s Wonder Woman and Feminism 207
Kristi Fleetwood

List of Contributors 211

Call for Papers 213